

EXPLAINING SCHIZOPHRENIA

SCHIZOPHRENIA is a general purpose "catch all" word used by atheists to indicate a person who is having any type of psychic or Spiritual experience. It is obvious, when you compare definitions, that the explanations of classic psychic and Spiritual skills and the explanations of what constitutes schizophrenia are identical.

In the atheist medical model, for example, hallucinations, which would be a symptom of schizophrenia, are defined as "sensory perceptual distortions, for example seeing (visual), hearing (auditory), smelling (olfactory), feeling (haptic, tactile), or tasting (gustatory) sensations that others would not sense". In their atheist psycho babble, they are actually describing the standard psychic skills known as (1) CLAIRAUDIENCE, defined as "the power to hear things outside the range of normal perception and receiving messages in thought form from another frequency or realm"; (2) CLAIRVOYANCE, defined as "the art of 'seeing' beyond the five senses"; and (3) CLAIRSENTIENCE (also known as psychometry) defined as "the ability to hold an object or touch someone and sense the energy surrounding that person".

Your chance of being convicted of schizophrenia and sentenced to a lifetime of court ordered brain damage at the hands of psychiatrists depends more on where you are rather than what you are. We illustrate this in the diagram above. People who manage to make it to the positive side of the imaginary line which separates the unenlightened masses from those who are aware and have achieved enlightenment, are free to live out their lives undisturbed by psychiatrists and other atheists.

Psychiatrists "hang out" in the area of this imaginary separation barrier between the unenlightened zone and the enlightened zone looking for anyone - especially children and young people - who are showing early signs of psychic development. If they find them before they are able to escape to the safety of the enlightened zone, they will kidnap them and drug them so as to destroy their psychic abilities.

Once someone escapes and becomes established inside the enlightened zone, they are usually safe from attack by psychiatrists. Groups inside the enlightenment zone are protected by secrecy. They know their survival, in a world run by atheists, heathens and infidels, depends upon it.

SCIENTIFIC ATHEISM

Scientific Atheism is a relatively simple philosophic belief system which gives comfort to the unenlightened masses. It argues that everything that exists, including people, is just the result of an "accident". The physical universe simply "poofed" into existence one day by accident. Then, by some other accident, like lightning hitting a rock, life accidentally started and then people evolved by random chance in accordance with the theory of evolution.

The NAZI belief system relies heavily upon Darwin's theory of evolution as a justification for creating a "master race" and exterminating "defective" people, a philosophy shared by psychiatrists. The drugs they force on their victims cause sterility in most cases which guarantees that these "defective useless eaters" will not breed and make any more "inferior creatures".

THE "CARRIE" EXAMPLE

The classic movie "Carrie", based on the book by Stephen King, suggests a scenario where a young girl has been so isolated that she has no idea that one day she will have her first period. So, when she does, in school, in the shower after gym class, she totally freaks. This example illustrates that, while the event itself is totally ordinary, the lack of knowledge and understanding creates a terrifying event.

It would be quite a chore to find a real girl like Carrie. However, there are many other attributes that are common to all people and, about which, most people are totally ignorant. All people can do Astral projection. All people have a "third eye". All people are capable of seeing "auras". None of these attributes, unfortunately, are common knowledge in the general population [unenlightened zone]. So, when an unenlightened person experiences any of these perfectly normal things, they are in the same situation as Carrie when she had her first period. They have no clue what is going on. If they are unfortunate enough to be intercepted by a psychiatrist, they will be labeled schizophrenic and drugged into a zombie state. On the other hand, if they have a knowledgeable friend or learn the truth about their experience by other research, they can develop their skills and lead a happy and fulfilling life. It's basically a "coin toss" to see which direction things go.

THE "MOREHOUSE" EXAMPLE

This discussion is based upon the book "Psychic Warrior" by David Morehouse [ISBN 0-312-96413-7]. To appreciate this discussion more fully, you will need to read this true story.

David Morehouse begins his "adventure" in the unenlightened zone on our diagram. Then, he is recruited by a secret government group to be trained to be a "remote viewer". They call in his wife and tell her that, once trained, he "will no longer be the same man she married". So, now Morehouse moves across the barrier to a protected area in the enlightenment zone and is trained to develop psychic talents and become a remote viewer. He is safe as long as he stays here and is protected by national secrecy. He has psychic friends who are also remote viewers. In his "new life", it becomes normal to travel in time and gather information from distant places without ever leaving the "office". His extraordinary psychic skills are simply everyday talents and all his new friends have the same abilities.

Then, he decides to leave. His boss tells him, "You have no where to go - if you leave you will be in the general population [unenlightened zone] where you will be perceived to be crazy."

So, Morehouse leaves and, sure enough, he is attacked by psychiatrists and forced to take brain damaging drugs which totally ruin him. His wife leaves him and he loses everything he has built up so far in his life.

Fortunately, his story has a happy ending which is covered in the last chapter. The explanation of what happens is not real clear - most likely because Morehouse did not know - so we will present it in more detail. What had happened to Morehouse - and what also happens to so many who are attacked by psychiatrists - was that the brain disrupter drugs forced on him had actually disconnected his Soul from his body, leaving him a sort of zombie. Fortunately, he had a friend who knew how to help him. This situation can be repaired, but only by a Spiritual master. So his friend arranges for him to go through an American indian ritual in which he is taken out of his body to meet an ascended master on the Astral plane who repairs the damage. Later, he was able to get his wife back and he now makes a living teaching remote viewing to the general public.

You should realize that such an escape and recovery is very rare. Most people attacked by psychiatrists never recover. Morehouse is an extremely lucky man.

This example illustrates the situation of beginning in the unenlightened zone - traveling into the enlightened zone - then falling back into the unenlightened zone, and finally achieving enlightenment once again.

National Security Concerns May Explain the Mental Illness Frenzy

In a society with no national health care system, people with legitimate illnesses who can't afford doctors are left to die. However, for some reason, people accused of imaginary mental illnesses get free care. In fact, they don't even have to search for a doctor because the doctor breaks down their door in the middle of the night and hauls them away for forced treatment. Clearly, maintaining this process is expensive. So, why does a society which ignores legitimately ill people care so much about those unfortunate enough to have some kind of "illegal personality"?

Consider this: What if ordinary people and investigative reporters were to learn the technique known as remote viewing. Then, when you watched the news you would hear something like, "The President had a meeting and the press release says... BUT our remote viewer reporter was able to project into the secret meeting and the real truth is ..." Clearly, this would be a publicity disaster which might well explain why the cost of hunting down and brain damaging anyone suspected of psychic abilities is considered to be justified and necessary in a society built upon lies and deceptions.

